FORT WORTH (AP)—Rancher Paul Waggoner sold 2,500 acres of Tarrant County land for an industrial site today in the biggest land transaction in the county's history.

William Zeckendorf Jr., son of a New York real estate operator, and Angus Wynne Jr., of Dallas signed the sales contract.

Zeckendorf said Wynne would be president of the Great Southwest Corp., now being formed to operate the development.

Buyers gave Waggoner $500,000 as a down payment. The total price was hinted at $6,000,000.

The elder Zeckendorf said he hoped to develop the nation's largest light industrial area on the site between Arlington and Grand Prairie.
